Farm Journal Foundation Expands Board

Washington (November 15, 2013)—The Farm Journal Foundation is pleased to announce that it has added David Lambert as its newest board member. A longtime friend and associate of the Farm Journal Foundation, Lambert joins the board after many years of service fighting world hunger and promoting modern agricultural development. His work and experience is closely aligned with that of Farm Journal Foundation and will undoubtedly add an invaluable breadth of expertise to the activities of the foundation.

“David has been an active supporter of Farm Journal Foundation’s mission and its Farmers Feeding the World platform since its launch,” said Charlene Finck, Farm Journal Foundation’s president. “We are thrilled to formalize his involvement with the Foundation. His experience and expertise will be a great asset to the foundation’s mission.”

Lambert is principle at Lambert Associates, a public affairs strategy firm that works with a wide variety of organizations in the public and private sectors. In addition to serving in numerous advisory roles, he is a frequent speaker and advocate for the issues of global food and nutrition security. Recently, Lambert lectured at the World Food Prize and the Clinton School of Public Service. From 1999 to 2003, he worked as an FAS counselor to the U.S. Mission to the U.N. Agencies, where he promoted food security policies. Prior to that, he was senior vice president at the New York Stock Exchange.

Lambert has received The Harvard Kennedy School of Government’s Senior Managers in Government award, a law degree from The George Washington University, and a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Arkansas. Lambert is a member of the D.C. Bar and is active in civic and charitable activities furthering the goal of ending hunger.

As a member of Farm Journal Foundation’s board of directors, Lambert will advise on the strategic direction and goals of the organization. He currently resides in Washington, D.C.

About the Farm Journal Foundation and Farmers Feeding the World

The Farm Journal Foundation is a nonprofit corporation dedicated to sustaining agriculture’s ability to meet the vital needs of a growing population through education and empowerment. Farmers Feeding the World is a platform dedicated to rallying the agricultural community around the fight against world hunger. The Foundation’s approach includes bringing together their extensive partnerships to elevate the next generation’s understanding of the connection between expanding global nutritional needs and advanced agriculture’s capacity to meet those needs.
